

Update # 58 -“City of Savannah”

B-17 Restoration

June 25, 2010

There has been a great deal of activity around the “City of Savannah” this week as plans are finalized to coat the interior of the aircraft with anti-corrosion material on June 30th.

This Wednesday was busy from 9:00AM until almost 10:00 PM as both the Day and Night crews gave it their all to have the “City” fully prepared for next week’s work. A Crew Chief’s meeting was held in the evening to plan for what is now being billed - to borrow a phrase from the Eighth Air Force in WWII - as the “Maximum Effort”, next Wednesday. Plans call for volunteers from all aspects of the project to combine and finish the anti-corrosion work in a one day push.

We will have a complete description and photograph record of this major event in next week’s update.

Much, much more to come . . .
